my team working in Parliament were not doing their job properly. She replied by stating that it was not a question of them not doing their job properly it was a question that they were against the experts in this field. I told her that I could get no comfort from the situation and again stated that the matter should be investigated. She stated that whilst she was certain of her ground she could not assist further without jeopardising the identities of her friends this she was not prepared to do.

My view is that today's meeting was basically to ask me whether I had placed some form of device on her vehicle.
